

ABSTRACT

There are provided a component-mounting apparatus and a component-positioning unit for positioning a component which have a simple structure with reduced manufacturing cost and a significantly higher component-mounting speed.

The component-mounting apparatus includes holding means 20 that holds a component M and moves horizontally and positioning means 26 having a sloped portion for positioning the component M held by the holding means when the component comes into contact with the sloped portion.